Benny Kauff has not changed his mind. The Federal League batting star insists that he will not obey McGraw's order to leave Friday night for Marlin Springs, Tex. He wants the New York club to pay hint $5,000 bonus and wants a similar amount from Sinclair, or he will not play ball.

There is not a chance for Kauff to have these concessions made to him. One thing is certain, the New York club will not come through with the bonus he demands, and, in view of the fact that Sinclair has announced that he is through with base ball, Kauff stands a poorer chance collecting from him. Kauff does not seem to realize that the war is over. There is no place for him to jump to under existing conditions, and the Giants are sure to make an example of him because the club cannot afford to display any weakness.

Kauff may go through with his threat not to play, but the New York club will go through the season just the same, while Benny will be the only sufferer. His demand for a ten-thousand-dollar bonus is absurd, when players of the ability of Tris Speaker are not growling about standing an eight-thousand-dollar cut.

There is a possibility that some of the above mentioned players will take part in some of the candlepin events, too, as there is not much difference in the size of the balls in use in that game and those thrown on the duckpin alleys here. Other banks and organizations are expected to follow the lead of the Potomac Bank in short order.

Moran, on the other hand, has been training for several weeks, and is, of course, better fitted to do the most strenuous work, which Willard will avoid for a week or ten days longer.

There is not much danger of either of and as a result he is to be rewarded.
